17 Defendant William Brown was sentenced on May 10, 2010, and ordered to pay $833.64
18 in restitution. At that time, defense counsel failed to request that the Court waive interest on the 19 restitution. Mr. Brown is indigent and lacks the ability to pay interest. Government counsel has 20 no objection to the waiver of interest on restitution. In the event that the Court would entertain a
21 stipulation to amend the judgment on this ground, the parties stipulate that the Court may amend
22 the judgment to waive interest on the restitution.

23 Should the Court agree to waive interest on the restitution, the parties do not believe that 24 a further hearing on this issue is necessary, but should the Court prefer to hear argument, the 25 parties request that the Court set the matter on the next available date.

The Court issued the judgment in this matter on May 13, 2010, ordering in part that Mr. Brown must pay $833.64 in restitution. The parties have stipulated that interest on the restitution may be waived because he does not have the ability to pay interest, and have further stipulated that the judgment in this matter may be amended to waive Mr. Brown's obligation to pay interest on restitution.

GOOD CAUSE APPEARING, IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that interest on the restitution is waived because Mr. Brown does not have the ability to pay interest. The clerk shall amend the judgment to so reflect.
